SOVIET LEADER SAYS RUSSIA CAN DROP H-BOMBS ON U.S. CITIES

Mikoyan Hints at Inter-Continental Missiles -Criticizes Stalin for First Time, Challenges His Writings.

MOSCOW, Feb. 18 (UP) - A top Soviet official was revealed today to have said that the Soviet Union has the means to deliver and drop the hydrogen bomb on American cities and to have hinted at ocean-spanning rockets.
First Deputy Premier Anastas

Mikoyan addressed the party Mikoyan addressed the party congress Thursday but his speech was not published until today. In it, he also criticized the late Premier Stalin by name, attacking the "cult of the individual" which he said reigned over the Soviet Union for 20 years and challenging Stalin's written works.

Mikoyan, a veteran Soviet eader, hinted that Russia already may have an intercontinental missile eapable of carrying atomic and hydrogen warheads.

He said war was not inevitable, with one of the deterrents being the fact that both East and West have hydrogen and atomic bombs.

Warmongers, he said, "are restrained, apart from public opinion, apart from the great military strength of the coupries of socialism, by another tries of socialism, by another tries of socialism, by another new important circumstance. It is the appearance of atomic and hydrogen bombs not only in America but also in the Soviet Union, as well as the means to carry these bombs to any point of the globe by aircraft or rockets."

FOG-BOUND RIDGE

Crash of Transport Is in a Day.

OAKLAND, Calif., Feb. 18 (AP)—A Marine Corps trans-port plane crashed just below the fog-covered ridge of a tight box canyon southeast of Oakland yesterday, killing all 38 men aboard.

VETO OF GAS BILL IS EISENHOWER'S FIRST REAL BREAK

May End Democratic Leader's Co - operation, and Is Blow to Knowland and G.O.P. Hierarchy Also.

By WILLIAM S. WHITE

The New York Times News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18— President Eisenhower's veto or the natural gas bill is his first break with the the natural gas bill is his first fundamental break with the centrist Democratic-Republican evalition that actually controls Congress most of the time. His action will have such deep domestic political? repercussions that it is freely described at the Capitol on all sides as the most important in the purely political sense that he ever took in his relationship to Congress.

Implications of Veto. Implications of Veto.

These are among the immediate and generally predicted implications of the President's decision to rebuke what he termed the "arrogant" actions that accompanied the Senate's approvablest weak of the bill:

companied the Senate's approval last week of the bill:

1. It will shake deeply, and possibly even end, the long co-operative arrangement between the President and the Democratic Senate leader, Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas. that has been one of the most striking aspects of the Eisenhower Administration.

2. It involves the President's

It involves the President's first clear-cut repudiation of the Senate Republican lead-er, William F. Knowland of California, and every other member of the party hierarchy in the Senate as well.

It will widen the longaxisting estrangement be-tween the President and the Democratic Speaker of the House of Representatives, Sam Rayburn of Texas.

It has cast into someapproaching terror of those Senate Republicans, particularly among those up for re-election this year, who had supported the bill in the belief that the President was behind it.

It has led to widespread 5. It has led to wicespread but far from universal con-gressional speculation that the President is preparing to ac-cept a renomination.

6. A congressional minority holds the view that the Presi-dentic own intentions, what holds the view that the President's own intentions, whatever they might be, were not involved in his veto action.

Challenge to Both Sides.
What is indisputably clear at the Capitol is that the President for the first time has frontally challenged, on the most sensitive possible issue, the powerful "middle-road"

The same is true of the less powerful Republican regency headed by Senator Knowland, whose position as minority lead-er has not been in fact so help-ful to the President on some past issues as has that of John-

Veto and Rebuke

President Eisenhower's veto of the natural gas bill is an outstanding service to millions of consumers and a rebuke to the Senate.

The Senate approached the gas grab by rashly passing the exemption bill before investigating the oil-smeared lobbying tactics used to promote it. Later a Senate committee traced the $2500 cash offer disclosed by Senator Case of South Dakota to an oil company executive. But the bill still would have become law had not the President blocked the way.

Mr. Eisenhower describes the lobbying efforts as "so arrogant and so much in defiance of acceptable standards of propriety as to risk creating doubt among the American people concerning the integrity of governmental processes."

This blunt message not only offers a lesson to the Senate but sets the President squarely against a majority of his own party's members in Congress. For while the gas bill was sponsored by Arkansas Democrats, the main voting support for it came from Republicans.

In the Senate, with Minority Leader Knowland leading the way, the Republicans voted for the gas grab by 31 to 14 or better than 2 to 1. The Democratic Senators voted against it by 24 to 22. In the House, the Republicans accepted the bill by 2 to 1 while the Democrats were 3 to 2 against it.

In a short six years two Presidents have vetoed efforts to exempt natural gas producers from federal utility regulation. Harry S. Truman did so because he believed the legislation was bad. The bill, he said, would leave gas consumers without defense against price increases, and would not be in the public interest." Mr. Eisenhower, however, has applied the veto for different reasons. While excoriating the tactics used to promote the legislation, he says frankly that "I am in accord with its basic provisions." He believes that "any new legislation" should include "specific language protecting consumers in their right to fair prices."

The President's intentions doubtless are good at this point but it is a serious question whether two parts of his veto message are not in irreconcilable conflict. He is right when he expresses the desire to include specific language protecting the consumer. But the problem is: How can the consumer be protected if the protectionfederal regulation of gas rates—is taken away in legislation whose avowed purpose is to remove regulation?

real action on gas measures this year. Congress can not expect to pass the present bill over the veto, and it would be politically unwise to press the issue with elections coming up and voters aroused by the Case affair.

The Harris-Fulbright bill was considered a kind of last-ditch gas attack by the oil and gas lobby. The lobby expected presidential approval. The Case revelation blew that up, with the consequence that President Eisenhower has now performed what Senator Douglas calls "a great public service."

The Illinois Senator should know. He led the hard, uphill, painstaking, seemingly hopeless fight against this gas grab, just as he led the fight against the earlier Kerr gas grab. The little bipartisan rear guard of Senators with Senator Douglas included Senators Hennings of Missouri, Potter of Michigan, Wiley of Wisconsin, Morse of Oregon, Lehman of New York-and Senator

To these men and to Dwight D. Eisenhower, 40 million gas consumers owe thankful recognition for public service.

But maybe the machines will be trained to make an irresistible sales talk which will cause FELICIANO CARRERA. people to buy so many more stamps than they really want that the gadget will provide the answer to that ancient problem of how to get the Postoffice out of the red.

The Witching Hour

Volunteer members of the Robertson Fire Department may be right when they assert that operating a tavern in the engine house keeps the boys handy for answering alarms. You can't argue with logic like that. Still, we are unable to shake off the feeling that service from the engine house might be just a wee bit below par say about five minutes to 12 of a Saturday night The volunteers would be there all right, but would they be able to tear themselves away from all that conviviality if an alarm came in?

Saudi Arabia Tank Deal

The State Department has done right, in our opinion, in cancelling its projected shipment of 18 light tanks to Saudi Arabia. The tanks, which were loaded on barges at a New York pier, were awaiting transfer to a freighter bound for the Middle East, at the time the cancellation order was announced in Washington

As explained by the State Department, the tanks were ordered by Saudi Arabia last spring. This was under an arms assistance agreement of 1951. In turn the sale was approved last fall. A spokesman for the department said the tanks ere to be used "in connection with a United States training mission's operations" in Saudi Arabia. The 1951 agreement also provided for the maintenance by this country of an air base at Dahran, on the Persian Gulf. This base, which is considered most important, can be continued if the agreement is renewed when it ex-

This is the background of the controversy over the tanks. Assume that it justified not only the agreement with Saudi Arabia, but the plan to transfer the tanks. That was before the recent violent outbreaks between the Arabs and the Israeli. Since that trouble, which has been a danger to world peace, it would have been infinitely better to have negotiated changes that would have substituted economic assistance for

The cancellation is a credit to the alertness of Senators Humphrey of Minnesota, Lehman of New York, Douglas of Illinois and the others who joined in opposing the tank transfer. They made a strong case against sending the tanks on the grounds that it would be inconsistent with One way to a the United States position of not sending arms capped a gusher.

to Israel. It would also have been inconsistent with our own opposition to the sending of arms to Middle East from behind the Iron Curtain. Whatever else the world requires, it does not need an arms race in the Middle East. We hope in the future that the State Department will review its agreements periodically to see which have been outmoded by events and which invite Communist exploitation in propaganda to Asia and other Cold War areas.

No Lug in the Schools

Failure of the St. Louis School Board to pro-hibit the solicitation of political contributions from school employes is perfectly understand-

The members who now dominate the Board owe their seats to the ward politicians who need financial help in the campaign against Mayor Tucker's citizens' charter committee. And so for past favors granted, the Board majority is willing to look the other way while the politicians collect a one per cent salary lug on the school system's non-teaching employes.

What is difficult to understand, however, is why Mrs. Edward M. Harrington and Dr. Walter A. Younge went along with the spoilsmen. Beth were appointed by Mayor Tucker to fill unexpired terms. As candidates supported by the Citizens' School Improvement Committee in last spring's bitter school election they were understood to be against this sort of thing. Now they seem to be on the side of the crowd that de-

Perhaps they have been deceived by the propa ganda of some of their colleagues that there is no difference between an enforced lug and a voluntary contribution. School workers ought to have the same rights as anyone else, so the argument goes. The fallacy of course is that the school employe can't say No; or if he does the penalty is instant dismissal.

Fortunately the Board's position is not necessarily unchangeable; public opinion can change it. In our opinion the Board ought to re-examine its policy with respect to lugs. Three members are unequivocally against this ward-heeling device. They are Daniel L. Schlafly, Louis H. Antoine and Charles H. Christel.

If Mrs. Harrington and Dr. Younge were to rethink their positions, only two other votes would be necessary to protect school workers against political exploitation by the ward bosses.

Surely these two other votes ought to come from Oscar A. Ehrhardt and H. Lee Bruns, both of whom have longer records fighting for the Fortunately there is little likelihood of any good of the working man than they have voting

Back to Private Life

Arthur C. Mosley's formal surrender of the Sheriff's office in St. Louis county comes as something of an anti-climax.

Long before the Missouri Supreme Court ordered his ouster, the people themselves had already decided they had had enough of Mr. Mosley's dismal brand of law enforcement. And in November 1954, by a vote of substantially more than 4 to 1, they stripped the Sheriff of his police function. That left him merely as a head jailer and process server.

Whether the people have seen the last of Mr. Mosley in public office is something else again. He is proud of his law enforcement record, and it is possible that he may file as a candidate the Republican nomination. That is his right, of

If he does file, the county G.O.P. organization may find itself with a heavy millstone around its neck. The party is having a difficult enough time of it as it is trying to explain away the assessment fiasco that hit taxpayers where it hurts namely the pocketbook. To ask them to take an other four years of Mr. Mosley might be regarded by many as adding insult to injury.

Over a long period of years the silly and com-pletely useless institution of the fraternity "hellweek" has been responsible for bodily injury. mental suffering and even death. The latest such case is that of Thomas L. Clark, an 18-year-old freshman at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, whose body has been found in a reservoir. ogy, whose body has been found in a reservoir.

As a part of his initiation into Delta Kappa Epsilon, he was let out of an automobile at night miles from the fraternity house and told to find his way back. Instead, he drowned.

Since 1951 fraternity pledges at Washington University have been put to work in good causes at initiation time. These have included the collection of contributions for charitable agencies. Had that been the practice at M.I.T., Thomas Clark doubtless would still be alive.

VA Chiseler and the Taxpayer

Representative Olin E. Teague (Dem.), of Texas, who is chairman of the House Veterans Affairs Committee, makes a good suggestion for people "interested in helping the Government and helping the veteran." Veterans' organizations should be particularly interested in his suggestion that all persons knowing of abuses of the Federal system of free Veterans' Administration care for penniless veterans do what they can to eliminate these abuses.

Typical of the abuses Mr. Teague has in mind are these two cases from a General Accounting Office sample survey: (1) A retired construction engineer with net worth of $507.670 and annual income of $21,719 got free VA hospitalization for 25 days. (2) A farmer with net worth of $128,033 and annual income of $3000 also got free care for 25 days. Both men were treated for non-service connected ailments after observing the law by swearing they were unable to pay.

Only a small percentage of veterans are guilty of this practice, Representative Teague points out, but one such case in a community gives a black eye "to the whole veterans' program law, of course, should be changed but no prog-

Offer of $2500 to Senator Case in connection with natural gas bill calls attention to role of money in politics; no real check on its uses and sources now; radical as it may be, editor believes public financing of campaigns essential to avoidance of oligarchy.

The Providence Evening Bulletin

Demands for a broader inquiry into all the lobbying that surrounded the recent passage of the natural gas bill are "doubtless" well based. There seems every reason to believe that other expenditures might bear at least as close public scrutiny as has been focused on the $2500 in cash offered to the campaign fund of Senator Francis Case (Rep.), South Dakota, by an interested oil company executive. Efforts either to hold down campaign spending or to provide more effective publicity concerning it—the latter is now generally considered the more useful approach—repeatedly run up against two major difficulties:

One is that any number of separate organizations can be formed to support organizations can be formed to support a candidate's campaign; the other is that limitations or outright prohibitions upon donations from big contributors, notably corporations and labor organizations, do not prevent dispersal of funds through individuals associated with such groups, and even through members of their families their families.

Both these legal dodges tend not only Both these legal dodges tend not only to evade the unrealistic restrictions that have been placed upon campaign spending, but to confuse the public accounting candidates are supposed to give of where they get their campaign funds and how they spend them.

In a country as big as the United States, where running for office in any sizable constituency is enormously expensive, it may be questioned whether any tightening of the law governing political financing from private funds will really prevent candidates from feeling beholden to special interests.

For this reason, we hope the proposed investigation will consider the various proposals that have been made for providing campaign funds from public monies. That it is a radical reference proposals that have been made for providing campaign funds from publismonies. That it is a radical reform un likely to be adopted overnight is self evident. Since 1947, when Kenneth Arnold spotted the first flying saucer near Mount Rainier, Washington, the public has been clamoring to find out if the interplanetary invasion was really on, or at least whether "those things" do exist or not. A great deal of the flying saucer excitement was stirred up by Donald E. Keyhoe's famous articles in True Magazine, and the result was that the citizenry looked to the United States Air Force for explanations of just what was going on up there in the sky. The author of this book was the Air Force officer responsible for providing the official explanations from 1951 until 1953. While assigned to the Air Technical Intelligence Center—a specialized organization which keeps track of technical developments in foreign aviation—he investiments in foreign aviation—he investi-gated all reports of "UFO's," as uniden-tified flying objects are called. Actually, matter as early as September 1947, but matter as early as September 1947, but because of lack of interest and the theory that "if you ignore them they'll go away," little seems to have been done before Mr. Ruppelt took over as chief of the activity named "Project Blue Pock"

All of the previous work done by the Air Force on UFO reports was reviewed by Mr. Ruppelt. BAYARIAN FANTAY: THE STORY OF LUDWIG II.

BY Desiment Chapman-Huston and edited byOsyth Lesston. (Library Publishers, 114 pgs., 47.5.).

Although regarded by many historians as the enigmatic king, Ludwig II, member of the powerful Wittelsbach family which ruled Bayaria for about 800 years, was beloved by Bayarians and thought of as their Fairy King.
Much can be said about Ludwig's seeming disregard for matters concerning the crown and his mental deterioration, but on the throne he ruled with the decorum befitting his position. His greatest contributions to Bayaria were in the field of art, particularly through his field of art, particularly through his financial support of Wagner which in-sured the genius of the composer for sured the genus of the composer for posterity.

Ludwig's biography is told by the king himself through previously unpublished letters, diaries, journals and memoranda compiled by Desmond Chapman-Huston. The book is intended to be subjective, and pictures the Wittelsbach heir as a lonely man, who, even as a child, seeks to escape from reality into a world of fantasy. These revelations do not excuse Ludwig's faults as a monarch, but they help in shedding light on his personality and character.

Correct Defects Of Boyer, Repulski

By J. Roy Stockton Post-Dispatch Sports Editor. ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 18-The results of expert instruction by specialists are plainly evident in the spring camp of the Cardinals as the first week of drills draws to a Terry Moore has discovered what has caused Rip Repulski's throwing trouble and Rip is very happy about having determined the fault in his style that caused him to take several extra steps and several precious seconds in getting off his throws from the outfield. And Bill Jurges, the infield coach, a shortstop wizard with the Cubs in his playing days, has given some valuable pointers to Ken Boyer, Dick Schofield and others. what has caused Rip Repulski's Repulski, though he has a Repulski, though he has a strong arm, was criticized frequently during his years as a Cardinal because it seems he was holding the ball too long before pegging to a base to head off a runner. One of the first assignments for Moore was to study the center fielder's form and try to correct the fault.

"I balleye I have it." Moore

"I believe I have it," Moore explained, as Repulski practiced out in the left field corner. "When Rip fielded the ball he had the habit of bringing his hands together in front of him, just as many infielders do and long it will take him to change his style. But he knows what he has been doing now and the rest is up to him."

Repulski seemed eager to shake the bad habit. He spent an hour or more, just taking grounders-from Pete Whisenant and practicing the correct way and practicing the correct way of getting his arm back quickly to make a throw

Ken Boyer had acquired a bad habit in his minor league days, a habit that stayed with him through his freshman year him through his freshman year with the Redbirds. He fielded grounders well, but he was taking the ball too far back, that is, too close to him. Jurges suggested that he take a ball out farther from him. A little thing, perhaps, but important. If you fumble a ball or stop it close to your body, it probably will skit behind you. If you get it farther out front you are in a better position to recover get it farther out front you are in a better position to recover the ball and get your man. It is such little things that make the difference between a good infielder and a great infielder. Moore and Jurges already have earned their salaries, if they can polish Repulski and Boyer into more efficient fielders.

They Stoop to Conquer.

Jurges also has been coaching the infielders to approach ground balls in a stooping position, instead of running upright and then stooping at the last minute. He points out that you can watch a hall better and get real cold the night we home, 99-79."

Exciting, These Trade Talks

The Philadelphia Phillies General Manager, ROY HAMEY (right), dropped by the Cardinal training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla., and made himself comfortable with Redbirds General Manager FRANK LANE (center) and Manager FRED HUTCHINSON. Hamey and Lane have sat and talked about a dozen times, discussing trades, and nothing has come of it yet.

They're expected to be at it again, before the weekend is over.

Edwardsville led Collinsville. 26-20, at the half, but the Kahoks scored 17 points in the third quarter with the help of only two field goals to go past Edwardsville. With a capacity crowd in Collinsville's spacious gym roaring for an upset, 6-6 crowd in Collinsville's spacious gram roaring for an upset, 6-6 Terry Bethel followed up his field goal with a perfect eight free throws in eight attempts during the period. Tom Jackson had a fielder and four-forfour and Sherman Whitlow added a free throw as Collinsville went ahead, 37-33.

The lead was short-lived, however. Reacting to the emergency quickly, four Edwardsville players contributed field goals in a rally that gave the Tigers 10 straight points at the start of the final quarter, and that was the ball game. Manny Jackson set a new scoring record for Edwardsville as he made 21 points. That gave him 574 for the season cicht more than bob Gregor had in 1953-54.

Arother Jackson was high for Collinsville, as Tom Jackson scored 18 points. He, Bethel and another starter. Tom Wilholt, are juniors. Bethel is the team's top scorer for the season.

500,000 MILES OF SUN SPOTS

Array of sun spots extending about 500,000 miles is shown in northern (upper) half of picture made yesterday at Mount Wilson Observatory, Southern California. Observatory officials listed more than 150 sun spots in the picture and said a recent rash of magnetic storms on the sun has resulted in the greatest number of spots observed since 1951. Black markers at upper left and lower right indicate the sun's north and south.

TANKER IN TROUBLE

An Air Force KC-29 rests on runway at Idlewild Airport, New York, after an unscheduled belly landing yesterday. The aerial tanker, a converted B-29, was scheduled to land at Mitchel Field on Long Island after flight from Texas. Its windshield iced up, however, and an emergency landing was attempted at Idlewild. There, as the plane touched down, its nosewheel and landing gear collapsed. None of the 16 crew members was hurt. Fins extending from boom are used to control pipeline as contact is made in aerial refuellings.

ANTARCTIC VILLAGE

Aerial view of Little America V, the "village" in the Antarctic which has been set up in the current Operation Deepfreeze. Picture, taken Jan. 14, shows some of the base's 19 prefabricated buildings already in place with supplies and equipment close at hand. The base, and another at McMurdo sound, will be in use for the next two years as teams of scientists study cosmic rays, magnetic forces and Antarctic weather.

GRANTED SEPARATION

Mrs. Gertrude Gretsch Astor, second wife of John Jacob Astor, leaving court at New York yesterday after being granted a separation from Astor. In granting the separation, the court ruled invalid a Mexican divorce Astor obtained in 1954. The millionaire remarried after the Mexican divorce and later became embroiled in a divorce action with the third wife. The second wife received custody of their daughter and $3000 a month for support.

Criticizes Senate Group for Proposing Return to 90 Pct. Farm Price Props.

The New York Times News Service. (Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.) DES MOINES, Ia., Feb. 18— Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson said last night that concern over the current farm price squeeze had touched off

In a speech at the eighteenth annual National Farm Institute, Benson said he was "appalled" by those who were now franti-cally urging him to "do any-hing" to bolster farm income. That kind of frantic thinking has contributed to the prob-leps we face today," he said. He predicted there would be frequent attempts in the months ahead to "place agriculture on the political auction block." He said pressure on the farmer as a voter would be "terrific."

The price squeeze is real and hurts. Agriculture is not de-ession-bound, and whoever pression-bound, and pression-bound, and wnoever says it is, is simply not telling the truth," Benson said. Criticizes Committee. He criticized the Senate Agri-culture Committee for proposing a return to rigid farm price supports at 90 per cent of par-He said the committee had proposed a "soil bank" almost identical to the one the Eisenhawer Administration had recornmended.

"With this soil bank, the committee would strive to reduce our surplus. With rigid, wartime 90 per cent of parity supports, they would provide the incentive for increased production and a growing surplus," Renson said.

These two proposals, both of which would be costly, are directly opposed to each other, he sald.

By indirection, Benson criticized Iowa's all-Republican congressional delegation. This group has been urging him to improve cattle and hog prices by means of larger Government livestock purchases.

"Some folks, with good intentions no doubt but with mistaken judgment, insist that your Government raise the price of hogs

He said such programs in the past had produced nothing but great expense for the Government and poor public relations for the farmers.

Benson eulogized the President, describing him as "a man-of truly great character, deep humility and spiritual convic-tion." He said Cabinet meet-ings invariably open with prayer.

He said he had not asked for his present job. "I can't imagine anyone in his right mind wantanyone in his right mind wanting to be Secretary of Agriculture." he said. The audience laughed. "The President put this call to service on such a high plane that I couldn't refuse." Benson said.
Earlier he told a press conference he feels Mr. Eisenbower will run a second time and added that if he does it will be a blessing to the whole country.

Hostile farmers plied Benson with questions. "If Ike is re-elected," he told them, "I'm willing that he have another Secretary of Agriculture."

has agreed to dispose of 12 theaters, and its booking business in an anti-trust suit settlement with the Government, it was anmounced yesterday.

A consent judgment signed by United States District Judge Irwing R. Kaufman ended the action which was first filed in 1950 against Jacob J. Shubert, the late Lee Shubert, Marcus Heiman and three corporations.

The Government charged that the three men illegally restrained and monopolized trade in the production, booking and presentation of shows in the United States. The Government said the Shubert chain controlled bookings in New York City and "in virtually all the cities where plays were tried cut prior to their New York City run."

cet prior to their New York City run."

The Shubert chain has held about 50 per cent of the theaters in New York City. It must now dispose of four in New York, two in Chicago, two in Philadelphia, two in Boston yid one each in Cincinnati and Jetroit.

NEXT week an important birthday will be celebrated, and with a national holiday. For any holiday we like to plan special food, and it is natural to choose a dish that features cherries on this date.

That well-known story about George Washington and the cherry tree was probably fabricated. At least it make a human hero of the dignified figure. Possibly it developed a pattern of honesty among the young.

There are a number of good reasons for featuring canned cherries at this time of year. There is no better canned fruit. We like it by itself or with a cake type of pudding or with waffles. The latter can be baked at the table and served with a thickened sauce poured.

cial occasion; the waffles may be topped with ice cream before they are covered with the cher-ries.

Instead of a thick sauce you may like to heat the cherry juice with a little extra sugar. When this is dissolved the cherries may be returned to the juice and flavored with rum or brandy. When blazing rum is added the fruit is featured as Cherry Jubilee.

Cherry Jubilee. Perhaps this dessert received its name through the jubilee of Washington's Birthday.

THERE are all sorts of ways to pass the next few weeks. Some people go South where it's nice and warm and the swimming and fishing are good.

Some people just go to bed and stay there until the first robin

Today's column is devoted to teen-agers who are invited to submit their problems to Martha

Dear Martha:

AM in my early teens and I am very fond of a boy who is a few years older than I. I have liked him for about a year now. He is not too popular, I guess, because he works at the show and has to throw a lot of kids out but I know he is only trying to do his job. I know a lot of boys but I like him much more because he is ery sweet. The only trouble is that he doesn't notice me and he works every night except for Monday and Tuesday and I only see him at the show once a week. Please tell me how I can get him to notice me. PAT.

Certainly not by making so much noise that he'll have to ask you to leave! Too many people try to make themselves conspicuous and everyone else has to suffer in the bargain. Do you actually know him? Does he speak? Do you know anything about him other than he is sweet and conscientious? And, for that matter, how do you know he's the kind of boy you want to date? I'm not saying he isn't, because he may very well be a fine person. I'm only saying it's dangerous to fails for someone you don't know. If he's in school, perclined to suggest that you concentrate on the boys you know and forget the strangers.

Dear Martha:

One 1-pound can dark sweet cherries; one 1-pound can light sweet cherries; one cup sugar; grated rind of one medium orange; three tablespoons corn-I WILL BE 12 in April, and am tall for my age. My mother will let me wear lipstick occasionally but my father objects violently. When I go to a party, I want to wear Høstick and nylons. My mother says the lipstick is all right but not the nylons. So I am asking for your opinio

Will ALL the others wear lipstick and long stockings instead of bobby sox? Won't there be some whose parents egree with your's? If so, don't make an issue of it. Look your prettiest, always well-groomed and fastidious, and that lipstick and those nylons will make little difference. A scrubbed face is far more attractive on a teen-ager than one heavily made-up. But ask your mother if she won't talk to your dad about the lipstick if you feel you would be the only one not wearing it. Perhaps she can persuade him to go along with the idea

Beauty Milestone

PRESS AGENT'S handout says that a newly established Beauty Institute, organized to perform basic research on feminine beauty, has set as one of its early tasks the finding of ways of preserving the "beauty peak"-the time when woman has her greatest feminine appeal.

MOST WOMEN don't ac-RUTH MILLETT tually begin to develop as individuals and responsible human beings until the beauty tually begin to develop as peak of their own lives is passed. It's when a woman's mirror tells her that she can no longer rely on youthful beauty to get her what she wants out of life that she settles down to counting her other assets and figuring how to make the most of them.

It is then that she turns to developing her other resources and sees the need for making herself useful, efficient, charming, helpful and reliable in order to keep the place her youthful beauty helped her acquire.

IT IS ALSO then that she quits thinking of herself as competing against all other women and begins to make friends within her own sex. She learns to relax and enjoy the company of other women.

"Most of the world's important jobs that are performed by women, including that most important job of making a happy and harmonious home, are done by women whose beauty peak is past.

Nature probably knew what she was doing when she made a woman beautiful long enough for her to get a mate and then lessened her beauty, year by year, until she learned to replace it with busy hands, a kind heart, and a willingness to leave the spotlight to another generation of girls at the beauty peak.

Social Problems By Emily Post

WOMAN writes me: "I belong to a bridge club of eight. We play once a week at each other's houses. After each meeting everyone puts 50 cents into a kitty and when we have enough in it we buy tickets to a play and have a theater party. One of the women has recently dropped out of the club and we have invited another friend to take her place. Our question is this: Should we return her share of the kitty money to her? We about $5 apiece saved. Some of the women think we should return it and others say 'no.' As we stand divided on this issue I have decided to write and ask you what is proper in this situation." In your places I think I would return the amount to the one who has left, and then if the newcomer wishes to go to the theater party she should contribute her full share. If she does not feel like doing this she would wait until the next party.

DEAR MRS. POST: Is it proper for a man to include the suffix "Sr." after his signature? My husband and I have a difference of opinion about this and we would like

Answer: No, it is "Sr." who has the right to the name without a suffix, and "Jr." has to add the suffix to his

Progress Report On Heart Disease

By J. Earl Smith, M.D.

EBRUARY is Heart Month.

It is the month to plan a course of action to protect your heart. In St. Louis, as well as throughout the nation, heart disease is the leading cause of death. There are over twice as many deaths from heart disease as there are from cancer, the second leading cause of death. Last year in St. Louis diseases of the heart and blood vessels were responsible for 4882 deaths, or 55 per cent of the total resident deaths rethe total resident deaths recorded.

In spite of these statistics circumstances have never been more favorable for a successful outcome in the fight to control the ravages of heart disease. The term "neart disease" covers over 20 different types of heart ailments. It is no respecter of age. Congenital malformations of the heart, which are evidenced at birth, are fortunately comparatively few and surgical procedures are now available to correct many of these applicaments. Drugge of these malformations. Drugs now help to prevent rheumatic fever and the resulting rheu-matic heart disease, which have constituted the leading fatal disease among those between the ages of 5 and 19. Hyper-tension (high blood pressure)—a problem of the middle-aged—throws an additional burden on the heart and arteries to wear out sooner. However, in many instances and under competent medical supervision, hypertension can be controlled and many people who have it live to a normal old age. The increasing death rate for coronary heart disease—most common after 50—is explained in a large measure by the fact that the life span is increasing and a greater number of people now live to problem of the middle-aged number of people now live to advanced ages.

If you have the least suspi-cion that you have heart disease see your physician immediately. Your suspicions may be wrong but it is better to know for sure than to worry. If your doctor finds that you do have a heart condition it does not necessarily follow that your life span will be shortened or that you will be an invalid.

HOME APPRAISAL FOR G.I.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 (UP)

The Veterans Administration reported today requests to appraise proposed new homes for possible G.I. loans increased in January for the first time since last August.

Appraisal requests, considered a good indicator of future building plans, totaled 29,284 last month. This compared with 24,892 in December.

Officials attributed the rise partly to the normal activity of builders getting ready to start their year's construction. They also said a relatively greater. last August.

"The guard, Mr. Parker," Tad said.
"Tell him to come to me."
Parker entered. He trembled.
"Why were you not at the door to keep the assassin out?" she asked flercely.

The door was open. She saw man in the hall. "Who is hat?"

A WEEK ago I spoke of the fact that many insurance companies charge higher rates when there is a teen-age driver of an automobile. The question came up:

"Can teen-age drivers do anything to bring the rates down?"

That will be, at best, a slow and hard-drawn battle.

Whether drivers are boys or way are as silly as geese are supposed to be. Often they are cowards.

Whether drivers are boys or girls, there will be improvement when cars are driven with more care. In the long run, millions of boys and girls could lower the insurance rates by driving safely.

"If it is going to take years to lower the rate by careful driving, I may be out of my teens before the change takes place."

She lay back on her bed.
Tears pooled in her eyes.
At last she dressed and went across the hall to her bedroom for the first time since Abraham's death. She ordered up all the trunks and boxes to be found in the basement and began working as though possessed, assembling everything the Lincolns had brought with them from Springfield or accumulated over the four years in the White House.

She could not bring herself to go into Abraham's bedroom. She had his clothes and personal effects brought to her, giving them sway to friends and associates who had loved him.
